SCHOOL REPORT.

There can be but one opinion in regard to the value and necessity of our common school system among intelligent and law-abiding people. And in presenting this report to the inhabitants of the town, we desire to carefully lay before them a true statement of facts as we have found them existing in our schools. As we look over the work that has been accomplished, we take pleasure in saying that we have had a successful and competent set of teachers, those that have worked for the good of their pupils, and have endeavored to teach them morality and good discipline, for certainly there can be no great improvement in schools where there is little regard for good order. And we are happy to state there have been but a very few instances where a scholar has defied the rules of the school room. We have not looked for perfection but for improvement, and this has been made manifest in a marked degree in most of our schools. We have engaged teachers whose homes are in our own town when we could secure their services, believing we have as thorough and accomplished set of teachers as can be found in any other town, but have been obliged at times to go out of town for them. We would earnestly urge upon all who have the welfare of our schools at heart, the great need of punctuality. "Never be tardy" should rest upon parents' minds as well as the scholars. If a scholar comes into school after it has commenced it disturbs the whole school, it takes their attention from their studies or recitations, and to the whole school a number of minutes of valuable time has been lost. It is the case also where scholars are absent for a day or more; what time is lost in their studies is seldom made up, but is gone from them forever; therefore we say be punctual at school. We have had twenty-four weeks of schooling in each division excepting number eight, which has had twenty-eight. We hope that the citizens realize the value of the work of culture of the tender mind and will not let the school terms be shortened for the lack of funds.
